

Short Game Grip

A chip is a face shot, not a power shot. The grip that produces speed is the wrong tool here.

Problem

Chips come out inconsistent. Some check, some run, some come off the heel.

Root cause

You are holding a wedge with your full swing grip. That grip is built to rotate the face for speed, which is the opposite of what you want inside 30 yards.

The short game grip

- ☐ Choke down one to two inches on the handle.
- ☐ Hands quieter and more neutral, less rotation built in.
- ☐ Grip pressure about a 4 out of 10 and constant through the strike.
- ☐ Loft comes from weight and ball position, not from flipping the hands.

Loft control: lean left to de-loft and get steeper. Lean back to add loft. Ball forward raises the flight, ball back lowers it. Weight is the easier of the two levers.
