

Decision Game Scorecard

Nine holes, one rule: make the smart play on every shot. No hero shots, no pins you have no business chasing. You are scoring your decisions, not your swing.

Scoring

One point for every hole with no penalty stroke and no drive out of play. Target is eight of nine.

The rule outside 140 yards

Aim at the middle of the green. From the middle, your longest putt is about 30 feet.

The rule off the tee

Pick the club that keeps the ball in play, not the club that produces your best number.

After the round: count how many strokes you saved by making the conservative choice, and how many you gave away when you broke your own rule. Most golfers find three to four strokes here before they change a single thing about their swing.
